

Commodore Label Discography

The Commodore label was established in 1944 by Milton Gabler in New York City. Milt Gabler was head of A&R for Decca Records and the Commodore label was distributed by Decca. Commodore recorded jazz and popular music.

The label was taken over by Milt Gabler's brother Danny Gabler in May 1954. Head of A&R after this date were Jack Crystal and Leonard Feather. Commodore released albums into 1962 and seemed to have ceased operations prior to the end of that year.

The Commodore label was revived in the late 1970's and 80's with the 7000 series of reissues of the classic recordings of the 1950's.
